

THE YEAR
2000...

...And Your
Insured Shares

A message from the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA), regulator of federal credit unions, and the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund (NCUSIF), the fund that protects members' savings in federally-insured credit unions.

Your Money Is Safe...

Now, and into the Year 2000

Credit Unions, like all other financial institutions, are investing substantial time and money to ensure that their computer systems will work properly in the Year 2000. As we approach the century date change, the National Credit Union Administration especially wants you to know a very important fact:

The NCUA, through its insurance fund (NCUSIF), protects your shares up to $100,000 against loss due to the failure of a federally-insured credit union for any reason, including a Year 2000 problem. The Century Date Change Will Not Affect Your Deposit Insurance Coverage.

NCUA and the State Supervisory Agencies conducted special assessments of all federally-insured credit unions to make certain they have plans in place to assure critical computer systems are modified and tested, and will run smoothly when the Year 2000 arrives. Regulators are closely monitoring the progress of these credit unions, and will conduct additional assessments in 1999 and well into the Year 2000.

The NCUA wants you to be an informed consumer. Your credit union is the best source of information about its plans to get ready for the century date change. For more information about the efforts of the NCUA concerning the century date change, visit NCUA's website at <http://www.ncua.gov>.

Credit unions: Safe today, tomorrow, and into the next millennium.
